

Internship Opportunity:

Women's Civil Society Engagement in Turkey Project

About the organization

Development Analytics was founded in 2013 to provide decision-makers in the public and private sectors with evidence-based research on social programme and policy development. Our main areas of study are poverty, education, health, social protection, labour markets, and the overall distributional impact of social policies in developing countries. We specialize in large-scale data analysis and statistical methods for social research, while also carrying out mixed methods research that involves qualitative tools. We provide our clients with research and tools to (i) understand and diagnose social problems, (ii) devise programs to tackle these issues and (iii) rigorously measure and evaluate their results. #### About the project

Strengthening Constituency Engagement and Influencing Capacities of Community Based Organizations is a project that is led by KEDV (Foundation for the Support of Women's Work) in Turkey with technical support provided by Development Analytics. The project aims to enhance the participation and representation of grassroots women in community-based organizations. In this respect the first activity of the project will be to carry out field work to understand the current situation in Turkey with respect to grassroots women organizations and civil society participation of women. Under this activity a survey will be carried out in five provinces along with FGDs and in-depth interviews.

The survey will be designed and conducted with grassroots women to understand their perceptions, expectations and challenges in terms of engaging and participating in civil society. The survey will be designed during May and June 2020 and will be implemented with 500-1000 women in 5 provinces in Turkey in July and August 2020. The intern will be expected to support the survey design process. Key tasks and responsibilities of the intern will be as follows:

1. Conduct a literature review about surveys on civil society participation of women
2. Design the preliminary survey questionnaire with support from Development Analytics' staff
3. Prepare a preliminary analysis plan for the survey data
